Celebrate June Dairy Month

A typical day in the life of a Georgia dairyman is more than just milking cows; it's calf rearing, caretaking, nutrient planning, tractor driving, crop planting, record keeping and more each day, seven days a week. June is National Dairy Month and a great opportunity to celebrate the contributions made daily by Georgia's dairymen.

Georgia dairymen work hard to keep cows healthy and comfortable so they can produce high-quality milk. In Georgia,

Our guest columnist this week is Farrah Newberry, Executive Director of the Georgia Milk Producers Inc.

there are nearly 83,000 dairy cows that live on 252 dairy farms. The average herd size in Georgia is 320 cows. In 2011, Georgia's dairy cows produced 1.44 billions pounds

Sherwood Food Distributors Spreads Georgia Grown Nationwide

With Sherwood Food Distributors, it's all about connectivity.

The company started in 1969 and today has distribution centers reaching from Detroit to Miami to connect their clients with customers. The company's Atlanta distribution center came on line in 2007.

Joining Georgia Grown at the Gold

Level just made sense to Mike Coggins, general manager of the Atlanta division. Georgia Grown is an innovative marketing program managed by the Georgia Department of Agriculture.

"We want to support the Georgia companies we do business with," Coggins says. Sherwood Food Distributors, which distributes products for 80 to 90 customers, has about 25 Georgia companies—mostly beef, pork and poultry growers—as clients.

Coggins, a board member of the Georgia Food Industry Association (GFIA) for more than eight years, says he wants to support locally grown and U.S.-made products, recognizing and supporting local growers all the way back to the county level. He learned of the Georgia Grown program and signed up after a presentation by Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture Gary Black at a GFIA meeting this spring. "We are proud that we're from Georgia and proud that, even though we're part of a larger business, this distribution company is

Subscription Fee Now Required For Online Access to Bulletin

The Market Bulletin was available to Georgia farmers and consumers at no charge since its inception in 1917; however, in July 2010, it became necessary to begin charging a nominal subscription fee for all subscribers as state funding was no longer appropriated for production of the publication.

Although subscription fees became mandatory for the printed and mailed publication, there was no charge to access the Bulletin via the Internet. Effective May 31, 2012, a subscription fee is now required for online access. There still is no charge for classified ads, but advertisers now must be paid subscribers in order to advertise.

"Since advertisers are not charged for their ads, we feel it is not too much to ask that the advertiser at least be a paid subscriber," said Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture Gary W. Black. "Advertisers certainly would have a hard time finding another source where they could advertise every two weeks for only $5 or $10 a year."

Atlanta Farmers' Market to Showcase Variety of Georgia Grown Products

The Georgia Grown Farmer's Showcase will be held June 16, 2012, at the Atlanta State Farmer's Market in Forest Park, Ga. This event is being offered to introduce the general public to the farmers that are producing local food, to promote new products in the area, and to remind people of the market's presence in the community.

Products at the showcase include meats, produce, jams and jellies, spices and seasonings, dairy products, olive oils and plants. There will be entertainment, food, pony rides and more. Agritourism sites also will be present with representatives

State of Georgia to Streamline Services for Agricultural Exports

Agricultural industry to enjoy more resources, international visibility under new agreement

Farmers in Georgia will benefit from streamlined export assistance thanks to an agreement signed May 31 by Chris Cumiskey, Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Economic Development (GDEcD), and Gary Black, Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Agriculture (GDA).

The agreement, a memorandum of understanding signed by the commissioners during an agriculture-focused trade and business mission in Turkey, will create an interagency strategic partnership between GDA, GDEcD and the Southern United States Trade Association (SUSTA) to provide a platform for increased efficiency in the assistance state government provides for agriculture. The agreement became effective June 1, 2012.

"Because both of our agencies help agricultural companies take advantage of global opportunities to sell Georgia products in strategic world markets, it only makes sense to combine our efforts," said GDEcD Commissioner Cumiskey. "Working together and sharing resources, we can boost business visibility and opportunities abroad for Georgia's biggest industry through our ten international offices."

"Georgia agriculture is increasingly becoming a larger player in international trade. Many of our commodities are top in the nation for overseas exports," stated Commissioner Black. "By partnering with the Georgia Department of Economic Governor Nathan Deal led a delegation of Georgia officials and business leaders to Turkey May 28 – June 1 to explore business and trade opportunities. Commissioner of Agriculture Gary Black, who spoke on behalf of the Governor to officials in Mersin, Turkey's sixth largest city, was asked to invite members of Georgia's agricultural community to be part of the delegation. Advertising Guidelines

Bulletin Publishes Every Other Week

All advertisements published in the Market Bulletin must relate to the farming/agricultural industry or be a part thereof; any and all item(s) submitted for sale through the BULLETIN must meet at least one of the following criteria:

1) must be produced by the advertiser on his/her own farming operation,

2) must be made by the advertiser from materials on his/her own farming operation,

3) must be owned and used by the advertiser on his/her own farming operation for a period of at least 90 days prior to offering for sale through the BULLETIN.

Businesses, corporations, dealerships or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the MARKET BULLETIN. Commercial is defined as intended for mass market; handling large quantities of product for distribution (i.e., more than normal household or farm quantities); supported by advertisement (i.e., advertisement in publications other than the BULLETIN; listed as "business" in telephone directories or "yellow pages", etc.). Other indicators include, but are not limited to, holding business licenses and holding regulatory licenses/permits/registrations.

* Georgia residents only may advertise in the Market Bulletin with the following exception: out-of-state residents may advertise only in the Out-of-State Wanted category.

*The editor has the authority to designate the length of ads and the number of ads that may be placed by a family unit in any issue of the BULLETIN. Currently, only one (1) notice may be placed by any family unit in any issue of the BULLETIN. Family unit refers to all individuals sharing the same residence, address or telephone number.

* Ads must be received no later than designated deadline in order to appear in the following issue. Ads submitted via our website will be scheduled automatically for the next available issue.

* Ads will be published only once each time submitted unless the advertiser specifies on the notice that the ad is to be published more than once. Ads may be published for two (2) consecutive issues. A new notice must be submitted if the advertiser wants the advertisement to continue more than two issues. Note: Some ad categories are published infrequently and are published only once per submission. Please check ad category headings for publication frequency prior to submitting notice.

* There is a 20-word limit for advertisements except as noted under category headings (special categories that are published only monthly, quarterly or bi-annually, have a 30-word limit). Advertiser's name, town, phone number or name and complete address must be included within the word limit. The Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit notices.

* Most advertisers include a telephone number in their ads, but mailing address may be published in lieu of phone number. However, it is important that advertisers provide a phone number when submitting ads in the event Bulletin ad personnel need to contact them concerning their ads. Advertisers who do not want a telephone number printed in their ads should note this fact when submitting the notice to the Bulletin.

* Each notice submitted for publication must be in writing; ads cannot be taken by telephone. Notices may be submitted by U.S. mail, facsimile transmission, or via the Internet through the Market Bulletin website. Notices sent via mail or fax must be legible, on a single sheet of paper separate from any other notice, and be accompanied by the name of the category and the name, mailing and street address(es) and telephone number of the person submitting the same. Any person engaged in buying live poultry of any kind for resale, or in selling live poultry of any kind bought for the purpose of resale, must be licensed by the Georgia Department of Agriculture. Possessing such a license does not by itself disqualify an individual from advertising poultry in the Market Bulletin; however, advertisers should note that all livestock (which includes poultry), must have been in possession of the advertiser for a minimum of 90 days or, in the case of chicks, ducklings, etc., must have been raised by the advertiser before offering them for sale in the Market Bulletin. Subscription Fee Now Required

The Commissioner noted that it became necessary to charge for online subscriptions as there are still expenses to produce the publication in addition to the costs of printing and postage required for the print edition. "We believe it is only fair that all subscribers pay for the services they receive, whether by mail or online," he said.

Following are the various payment options available and the services each option provides.

Online only subscriptions are $5 per year. This option allows online users to view, search and submit classified ads for the Market Bulletin, as well as access all articles and other Bulletin content. To start an Online Only subscription using your credit or debit card, go to website www.thegamarketbulletin.com and click on Online Subscription Payment Form and select the option "Pay for Market Bulletin Online Subscription Only." Online only subscribers will not receive a printed copy of the publication through U.S. mail. Please note there is a $1 convenience fee included in the online subscription fee.

Subscriptions to the print version of the Market Bulletin are available to Georgia residents at a cost of $10 per year; out-state-subscriptions are available for $20 per year. Out-of-state subscriptions must be within the United States or its territories. To start a new subscription for the print version using your credit or debit card, go to website www.thegamarketbulletin.com, click on Online Subscription Payment Form, and select "Submit New Market Bulletin Subscription." Please note there is a $1 convenience fee added for online subscriptions. Those who pay the $10/year or $20/year subscription fee will not only receive a copy of the Bulletin by U.S. Mail every two weeks (26 issues/year), but they also will have access to all online content and will be able to submit ads online. Note: out-of-state subscribers are allowed to advertise only in the out-of-state wanted ad category.

To renew an existing subscription using your credit or debit card, go to the webpage www.thegamarketbulletin.com, click on the Online Subscription Payment Form, and select the "Renew Existing Market Bulletin Subscription" option.

Subscribers also can submit a change of address online by accessing the website www.thegamarketbulletin.com, clicking on Online Subscription Payment Form, and selecting the option "Address Change for Market Bulletin Subscription."

For those without Internet service, new subscriptions, renewals, and address changes can be submitted by U.S. Mail. Send a check or money order payable to Market Bulletin, along with your name, complete mailing address and daytime phone number (in the event the Bulletin office needs to contact you concerning your subscription) to the following address:

Market Bulletin
Georgia Department of Agriculture
19 Martin Luther King Jr. Drive SW
Atlanta, GA 30334-4250

If you have an existing subscription to the printed and mailed version and you are not sure when it is due to expire, look at your mailing address label (located in the bottom left corner of the front page of your Bulletin) to determine when your subscription is up for renewal. The expiration date is located to the right of your subscriber number (the 9-digit number between the two # symbols directly above your name).

To report problems with online subscription options, send an email describing the problem to mb-issues@agr.georgia.gov or contact the Market Bulletin office at 404-656-3682, Monday – Friday, 8 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.

of milk, ranking the state 25th in the nation in total milk production.

Georgia dairymen do more than just produce milk; they create jobs, contribute to their communities, and help drive Georgia's economy. It is estimated that every dairy cow generates $13,700 to its community each year. That number includes not just the value of the milk she produces, but also the money spent within the community. For example, money used at the farm for services stays in the community, feeding the local economy. That includes money to the vet, to the local feed supplier, utility services, health care for family and employees, taxes – the list is almost endless. Your local dairy also provides jobs on farm and in the community, such as sales and service, transportation, processing and retailing.

And since Georgia dairymen live and work at their farms, they respect the land and work to preserve their communities.

Streamline Services

Development, together, we will provide greater exposure and knowledge for Georgia agricultural products in the world market."

Georgia Department of Agriculture will continue to assist Georgia's agricultural community and will now coordinate key international events in coordination with its sister agency, the Department of Economic Development. GDA will retain official membership in SUSTA, and the Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Agriculture will continue to serve as an active member of SUSTA's Board of Directors.

The agreement moves the primary promotion and coordination of the state of Georgia's agricultural exports to the Department of Economic Development, which will add export assistance for this important industry sector to its existing International Trade Division. GDECD will promote SUSTA's export promotion programs and services to companies within the state and will serve as the primary day-to-day contact for inquiries about agricultural exports from Georgia. SUSTA-paid staff currently housed at GDA will report to and be housed at GDECD.

* Georgia Department of Economic Development (GDECD) is the state's sales and marketing arm. The agency attracts new business, encourages the expansion of existing industry and small businesses, and locates new markets for Georgia products. It also markets Georgia to tourists and promotes the state as a location for film, music and digital entertainment projects. For more information, visit www.Georgia.org.

*The Georgia Department of Agriculture (GDA) is the voice of the state's agriculture community. The department's mission is to provide excellence in services and regulatory functions, to protect and promote agriculture and consumer interests, and to ensure an abundance of safe food and fiber for Georgia, America, and the world by using state-of-the-art technology and a professional workforce. Trichomoniasis provide protection from infection with T. foetus. The vaccine requires 2 doses, 2-4 weeks apart, with a single, annual booster each subsequent year 4 weeks prior to the breeding season. The vaccine reduces the severity and duration of the disease.

When T. foetus has been confirmed, all bulls should be tested and any positive bulls should be culled. Three sequential, negative tests taken one to two weeks apart are required to declare a bull clean. Annual follow up tests on all bulls are recommended. Removal of all open cows and careful screening of other high-risk, late calving cows is also recommended in herds with trichomoniasis. Management practices that perpetuate this disease include keeping infected bulls in the herd and purchasing infected bulls or cows.

Implementing a biosecurity program is the best course of prevention. Purchase only virgin breeding stock for replacement animals. Also, using a controlled breeding season and culling all open cows after pregnancy diagnosis helps minimize the risk of reproductive diseases in herds.

Agritourism Destinations Provide Unique Opportunities for Visitors

The Georgia Department of Agriculture is working hand in hand with the Georgia Agritourism Association, the Georgia Department of Transportation, and the Georgia Department of Economic Development to promote the state’s agritourism industry. Georgia has a variety of agritourism destinations, such as wineries, corn mazes, pumpkin patches, Christmas tree farms, petting zoos, apple orchards, pick-your-own-produce operations, pecan orchards, dairy farms, and farmers markets, to name just a few.

Although definitions may vary, agritourism basically involves any activity that brings visitors to an agricultural or agri-business operation for the purpose of enjoyment, education or active involvement in the activities of the operation.

Some farms have been tourist destinations for years, but as an industry, agritourism is relatively new in Georgia. With so many factors affecting farmers’ bottom line, such as natural disasters, uncertain economic conditions and increasing competition from other countries, some producers began making their farm operations open to tourists as another means of generating farm income. Such destinations provide an opportunity for visitors to learn how their food is produced and to talk with producers and processors first hand. Also, these operations provide some families and children the only opportunity they have to visit a working farm or ranch.

Farm or company owner/operators interested in DOA’s agritourism program may contact Cindy Norton at 404-656-5901 or Cynthia.Norton@agr.georgia.gov or visit the Georgia Agritourism Association’s facebook page at <http://facebook.com/GeorgiaAgritourism>.

Following is a list of the locations and contact information for those agricultural operations currently designated as Georgia agritourism destinations:

They depend on the land for business and quality of life. From water to waste management, recycling comes naturally on dairy farms. Dairymen provide their cows with clean water, and then reuse the water to flush barns, cool milk and pump through irrigation systems as wastewater to irrigate fields and crops.

Environmental practices on all dairy farms in Georgia are regulated by both federal and state agencies. In fact, every farm must abide by clean water laws to minimize runoff from their farms. Dairy farmers use best management practices that make economic sense, help the environment and are responsible to their communities.

While Georgia dairymen are busy running their farms, they rely on their producer-funded, producer-focused organization, Georgia Milk Producers Inc.,

to keep them educated on industry issues and to serve as their voice across the state. Georgia Milk Producers represents dairymen at various ag-promotional events, in the legislative arena, and at state and federal pricing and environmental hearings. Our organization acts as a catalyst for change, it doesn’t own cattle, processing plants or retail outlets and can’t single-handedly turn around a bad market. Yet, it serves as their self-help tool to fight for the success of the industry in Georgia and the Southeast.

Support your local Georgia dairy farm and enjoy a glass of fresh, great tasting milk. Dairy Farming, Dairy Farms, Dairy Farm

Trichomoniasis

Infection Can Result In Significant Losses in Cattle Herds

Lee Jones, MS, DVM

Editor's Note: Dr. Lee Jones is Assistant Professor/Vet Field Investigator at the Department of Population Health, University of Georgia College of Veterinary Medicine, Veterinary Diagnostic Lab, 42 Brighton Road, Tifton, GA 31793.

Trichomoniasis is a sexually transmitted disease in cattle caused by the protozoa, Trichomonas foetus. This single-celled, flagellated parasite lives in the preputial folds of bulls who serve as unaffected carriers of the organism. It is a significant cause of infertility and pregnancy wastage in cows. In the last 12 months two bulls have tested positive for T. foetus in GA.

Though bulls don't show any symptoms of infection, they are carriers of the parasite; however, the negative clinical effects of infection are more significant in the female. T. foetus colonizes the epithelial crypts of the preputial mucosa and does not invade the epithelium. These crypts or wrinkles deepen with bull age which provides a more favorable environment for the parasite and causes the chronic carrier state. Young bulls (less than 3 years old) that breed infected cows are more likely to have a short term infection and less likely to develop into carriers. Though some studies have shown slight breed predilections, no clear breed associated susceptibility has been established. Infection with T. foetus has no effect on bull fertility and the parasite is not detected during a routine fertility exam. There is no effective treatment for infected bulls and bulls that test positive for T. foetus must be sold for slaughter only.

Cows are infected during breeding by an infected bull. Infection in the cow usually results in early fetal death, abortion, infection or infertility. Fetal death most commonly occurs by 50-70 days after conception. Clearance of the infection by the cow is variable and infection often results in a longer calving interval of 90 days or more. In rare cases pregnant cows may carry the organism and be a source of infection after calving. Veterinarians from Colorado State University labeled the insidious disease 'the silent rustler'. Farmers may suspect trichomoniasis in their herd if they have an increased percentage of non-pregnant cows, increased percentage of cows bred late in the controlled breeding season, abortions especially less than 3-4 months of gestation or increased number of dead fetuses at pregnancy check (easily diagnosed with ultrasound).

A number of states have enacted more stringent testing requirements regarding the importation of bulls greater than 18 months of age. Some states have also implemented regulations restricting the transfer of ownership of non-virgin bulls within their states. In a 2004 report, 30% of the beef herds tested in FL had at least one bull test positive for T. foetus. A 1994 report found a prevalence of less than 1% in Nebraska and Colorado but by 2008 there were 311 bulls that tested positive in 21 counties in NE.

Reproductive efficiency is essential to herd profitability. Trichomoniasis can have a severe financial impact in infected herds by reducing reproductive efficiency through delayed conception, embryonic loss and abortion, which is intensified as bull infection prevalence increases. Economic losses also include increased number of non-pregnant cows and culling of infected bulls and open cows, fewer and lighter calves at weaning, veterinary costs of testing, and cost of replacing bulls and open cows.

The effects on herd production are similar to those of infection with Campylobacter foetus, Leptospira hardjo Ureaplasma, nutritional deficiencies relative to drought or poor management and using infertile or sub-fertile bulls. An investigation to identify the cause(s) of poor reproductive performance in herds must be comprehensive and include careful inspection of management practices, cow herd health and bull fertility. Diagnostic testing for the presence of T. foetus involves obtaining samples of preputial fluids from all bulls in the herd and has to be performed by a qualified veterinarian. There is no blood test to test for the disease.

Treatment and Control

There are no approved treatments for cows or bulls infected with T. foetus. A vaccine is available for cows but it does not (Continued on Page 6)

Cattlemen Advised of Reporting, Testing Requirements for Bovine Trichomoniasis

After bovine trichomoniasis was found in several western states last year, the Georgia Department of Agriculture adopted certain rules to add bovine trichomoniasis to the list of reportable diseases and to provide for certain testing requirements relating to this disease.

Rule 40-13-2-.07, entitled "Bovine Trichomoniasis," requires testing of all virgin and non-virgin bulls 18 months of age and older before entering Georgia. The rule requires bulls to test negative within 30 days prior to entering the state. The rule prevents bulls from having contact with female cattle between the test and importation into Georgia. Bulls comingled with cows after testing are required to be retested. All bulls must be identified with a U.S.D.A. approved ear tag, registry brand, or registry tattoo. The rule further provides that the collection of samples must be conducted by an accredited veterinarian and that animals must be identified on an official test chart.

The adopted rule allows the State Veterinarian to exempt certain bulls from the Trichomoniasis testing requirements when it is determined that such animals do not pose a risk for introduction of trichomoniasis into Georgia. This includes: exhibition and rodeo bulls that are temporally in the state for an event with no comingling of female cattle and will be leaving immediately after the event; bulls going directly to slaughter or being sold to go directly to slaughter; bulls being transported through Georgia in interstate commerce and not offloaded and comingled with female cattle; and virgin bulls under 18 months of age, as determined by breed registry records or the absence of permanent central incisor teeth in wear, which must be accompanied by a breeder's certificate signed by the owner, owner's representative, or accredited veterinarian.

Note that bulls leaving Georgia for sale in a different state that does not require trichomoniasis testing may re-enter Georgia without being tested provided that; 1) said bulls have not been comingled with cows after leaving Georgia, and 2) the bulls leave and re-enter Georgia under the same unexpired Interstate Certificate of Veterinary Inspection (health paper).

The Department also added "Bovine Trichomoniasis" to rule 40-13-4-.02(3), the list of reportable diseases. This requires any person to report the presence of bovine trichomoniasis to the Department if found. In addition, the Department added new rule 40-13-4-.05, which requires animals being tested for trichomoniasis to be separated from all other bovine. The rule further provides that animals testing positive for this disease must be slaughtered and recorded on Form VS 1-27. The slaughtering of animals testing positive is necessary since there is no known therapeutic agent for treating this disease and no cure.

Georgia Grown

Georgia Grown," Coggins says.

Sherwood Food Distributors definitely impacts every community in which it operates. The company's 250 trucks distribute more than 18 million pounds of product a week to 5,000 retailers, food service customers, cruise lines, wholesalers and industrial clients nationwide. The Atlanta distribution center employs some 175 people full time.

"We work with a lot of retailers as well and want to help them grow," Coggins continues. "This is where we all live, but we're hoping to distribute Georgia-made or -grown products in neighboring states, too. We want Georgia Grown to mean quality no matter where we sell it."

Sweet Corn Co-Op, located in Bainbridge, is a major producer of sweet corn in Southwest Georgia, harvesting and packing 2,000 acres per year. Georgia Department of Agriculture Chief Operating Officer Billy Skaggs, left, toured the co-op last month and met with the General Manager, Carl Lynn.
